Steve Owen . . . Coach of Men

Steve Owen has been a Giant for 27 years, as an all-time tackle of professional football, and as coach. He first saw the sights of New York in 1926, with the Kansas City Cowboys, a team which toured the country in wild west garb. Today, Steve is part of the big town, yet he has lost none of the characteristic zest and humor which he carried under a 10-gallon hat when he first arrived from native Oklahoma.

Owen is at one of his periodic peaks. His teams lost only four out of 24 games in the past two seasons, and the Giants are likely to be the favorites in the American Conference. But success doesn't delude Steve.

"Coaching is like being a monkey-on-a-stick," he comments. "When you are going up you always see somebody going down. And vice versa," he adds drily.

Owen teaches the everlasting kind of football, the contact sport based on block and tackle, quick-thinking, exquisite precision, and above all, on the eagerness of players to HIT!

For that reason, Owen is a coach of men, rather than of any particular style of formation. He says: "Systems are like ladies' fashions, but men don't change." When the Giants coach finds his men, he knows they can make any system work. He has a basic T formation. He employs equally his own invention, the A formation, with line unbalanced to one side, and backfield unbalanced to the other, to achieve deadly blocking angles. Off the A, he goes into a double-wing "Double A." This year he will add spread formations typical of the Southwest.

As an analyst of opposing offenses, Owen is celebrated and unexcelled, and his "umbrella" against passes is one of the few defense formations which have become nationally known, and evoked interest generally reserved for the attack.

Owen was born on April 21, 1898, at Cleo Springs, Oklahoma, in the pioneer land of the Cherokee Strip, where Indians, outlaws bound for the bad lands, and United States marshalls in pursuit, were a part of life. Steve enjoyed a romantic youth as a wrestler of renown in a wrestling state, and as a worker in the booming Texas oil fields. Later, he accompanied C. C. Pyle on that promoter's fabulous coast-to-coast "bunion derbies."

He first played football at Phillips U. in Enid, Oklahoma, in 1918, under Johnny Maulbetsch, the Flying Dutchman of undying fame at Michigan. He was captain and tackle of the great Giant championship team of 1927, which allowed 13 opponents a total of 20 points, a record never challenged.

Owen is now in his 22nd year as a coach who never signed a contract. As a coach, he judges players by their acts as men and not by their "names," in the fashion of early Oklahoma, so that his teams, whatever their luck, always know how to play their hand as it is dealt, and make the most of it.

Benners, Rote, Gifford and Price

The Giants this season introduce a four-star backfield which promises to rank with the most productive touchdown quartets of recent times. Fred Benners, superb passer from Southern Methodist, and a fellow rookie, power-driving Frank Gifford of Southern California, join fabulous Kyle Rote and Eddie Price, league-leading ground-gainer, in the brand new glamor foursome.

This sensational backfield climaxes the long rebuilding program of the club, which now has achieved down-the-line depth on offense and defense. The big-name backfield also reflects the ideal blending of youth and experience throughout the squad. The 57 candidates for the team as camp opened averaged 24.7 years of age, and only six had more than four years of big league experience.

Let's run through the squad, on offense first. Charlie Conerly, brilliant director of the A and T formations, is of course the No. 1 passer, and Joe Scott the polished veteran pass-catching marvel at wing-back. Pat Knight comes up as a hard-hitting blocking back for the A. Dick Yelvington reinforces Tex Coulter and Ray Krouse at tackle. Bob Patton is another rookie tackle who may shift to guard, where Ray Beck and Hal Mitchell have been brought in behind Bill Albright and Earl Murray. Quincy Armstrong adds depth at center, after Johnny Rapacz. The end squad is solid with the three Bobs — Wilkinson, Hudson, McChesney and Bill Stribling.

On defense, the ineffable Em Tunnell is key man in the umbrella formation, which will comprise Tom Landry, Harmon Rowe, Johnny Amberg, and Wilkinson as a relief man when needed. At backer-up, Don Menasco will understudy John Cannady. In the line, the devastating team of ends, Ray Poole and Jim Duncan, gains a recruit in Bud Sherrod. At tackle, the Arnie Weinmeister-Al DeRogatis duo has a spare in Carl Samuelson, obtained from Pittsburgh. Jon Baker, no friend of quarter-backs, again will guard the middle sector.

The versatility of the leading Giant backs will enable Steve Owen, coach, to switch freely from A to T to spreads. Benners will work from spreads until he learns the T. Rote, Gifford and Price or Scott with Benners will exert terrific pass potential from the spread. Conerly passes from the A and the T. Gifford will play any position but blocking back in the single-wing A, and left half in the T. Scott is wing-back in the A, right half in the T. Rote is wingback in the A, left half in the T. Price is fullback in all formations.

With youth, speed, variety and depth, and luck, the Giants look hopefully to the title, after driving second-place finishes in 1950-51.

Frank Gifford

The Rookie Parade

The Giants this season introduce one of the finest rookie groups in their history, a parade of future stars embracing many of the most famous names on the college campus last year. Among the foremost are Fred Benners of Southern Methodist, Frank Gifford of Southern California, Ray Beck of Georgia Tech, Hal Mitchell of U. C. L. A., Bob Patton of Clemson, Dick Yelvington of Georgia, Bud Sherrod of Tennessee, Quincy Armstrong of North Texas State, Pat Knight of Southern Methodist, Bob Bickel of Duke and Don Menasco of Texas.

In Benners, the Giants believe they have gained the player with the strongest and most accurate arm since Sammy Baugh came out of Texas. Benners passed several Baugh collegiate records, and was dubbed "Pass-a-minute" Freddie for his record of 265 completed passes in 271 minutes of playing time in three years for the Mustangs.

Gifford was one of the most powerful runners on the campus last season, and is also a versatile and brilliant halfback who has played at single wing tailback, T quarterback and at defense. In 1951 he gained 841 yards running, completed 32 of 61 passes, caught 11 passes, punted 34 times, scored seven touchdowns, kicked 26 of 32 extra points attempts, kicked off 19 times and returned four kickoffs.

Patton and Yelvington, tackles, Beck and Mitchell, guards and Armstrong, center, are offensive linemen who all gained sectional honors. Beck was named on 14 All-America teams!

Sherrod, a defensive end, was outstanding player for Tennessee in the Cotton Bowl in '51. Knight is a devastating blocker and tackler who loves to play defense or offense. Bickel and Menasco are outstanding defensive halfbacks who will be candidates for the "umbrella" formation against air attack.

Among the many other rookies of great promise are two "dark horse" halfbacks, John Kulsar of Williams and Sabin Hendrickson of McMurry College of Texas, who came well recommended for fine football manners, although they did not have big school reputations. Among other linemen of superlative quality in college are Tom Hanlon, versatile end from Penn, and Clint Holder of Hardin-Simmons and Joe Sabol of Tennessee, two rugged and enduring tackles.

It's a tough job to buck a virtual all-holdover lineup such as the Giants, but many of these rookies have the quality to do it.

Fred Benners

A Trio of ALL-Timers

The Giants proudly present three players, Eddie Price, Emlen Tunnell, and Charlie Conerly, who hold all-time records for the 33-year history of the National Football League. Price rushed 271 times in a season, Tunnell returned 34 punts in a season, and Conerly completed 36 passes in a game. The season marks were set last year; Conerly made his in 1948.

Price led the league with 971 yards gained while surpassing the record of 263 rushes by Steve Van Buren, great runner of the Eagles. Tunnell also topped the league with 489 yards as he broke the record of 33 returns by George McAfee, fabulous speedboy of the Bears. Conerly's 36 completions, against Pittsburgh, exceeds by three the best performance by any of the celebrated passers who graced big league football. Davey O'Brien of the Eagles made 33, and Sam Baugh of the Redskins and Johnny Lujack of the Bears were next at 29. In his feat, Conerly made 53 attempts, and netted 363 yards.

Eddie Price

Price, with 1,674 yards gained in two years, is now a challenger for the Giant "lifetime" record of 3,117 held by Tuffy Leemans. The young fullback from Tulane in not a behemoth on old-fashioned lines. Eddie weighs only 190, and stands five-eleven. But as Price points out, ground gaining today is a matter of speed and determination, and not size alone. Steve Owen cites Price for one of the most spirited performances the coach ever saw, because Eddie was a marked man on attack after Kyle Rote was injured early in the season, and had to battle grimly for every yard.

Fans often ask Owen why Tunnell, safety in the "umbrella" defense, is not used on attack as he was at Iowa. The coach believes the Negro halfback is more valuable to the attack on defense than he would be on offense! In the open, where he has room to fake and maneuver, Tunnell last season was second only to Price in yardage. He had 489 yards on 34 punt returns, 227 on six kickoff returns, including a 100-yarder, and 74 on nine interceptions. The total was 790 yards on 49 chances, for an average of 16.1 yards. He scored four touchdowns.

Conerly, who has recovered from a shoulder separation which reduced efficiency last season, set national collegiate records at Mississippi in 1947, was rookie-of-the-year in 1948, and has ranked among the illustrious marksmen of the circuit ever since.

Price, Conerly, Tunnell — a trio of touchdown makers on the ground, in the air, on defense!

Texans in September...

DALLAS TEXANS. The Giants are honored to play in the first big league football championship game in Texas, in the Cotton Bowl Sept. 28. The brand new entry in the National Football League is directed by Jimmy Phelan, among the nation's most imaginative and resourceful coaches. Last year, with the New York Yanks, Phelan averaged 24 points for two games against the rugged Giant defenses, while all other opponents averaged only 11.3 points. Bob Celeri, league's No. 5 passer, operates out of spread formations. George Taliaferro and Zollie Toth run, Art Weiner and Dan Edwards are crack receivers. Buddy Young flashes on punts and kickoffs. Top rookies are Les Richter and Gino Marchetti.

* * *

PHILADELPHIA EAGLES. The Giants have played the Eagles since 1933, and won 23, lost 12 and tied one. Present syndicate, headed by James P. Clark, three years ago took over a franchise founded in 1933 by Bert Bell, present football commissioner. Wayne Millner, former star Redskins end, coaches team which won world title 1948-9 under Greasy Neale. Eagles great star is Steve Van Buren, all-time ground-gainer of league. His brother Ebert is also on squad. The team is three deep in quarterbacks with Adrian Burk, Bob Thomason and Fred Enke. Top rookies are Lum Snyder and Dick Lemmon. Giants play Eagles in Shibe Park Oct. 4 and in Polo Grounds Oct. 26.

* * *

CHICAGO CARDINALS. Powered by two of the most brilliant stars of the 1951 college campaign, Ollie Matson and Johnny Karris, the Cardinals will open the Polo Grounds season Oct. 19. The Giants will play a return match in Comiskey Park Nov. 2. Frank Tripucka and Charlie Trippi pass, and Don Paul, Elmer Angsman, and Bill Svoboda run. Francis Polsoot is league's No. 3 pass catcher with 57 receptions in '51. Joe Kuharich is the new coach. Giants won 16, lost four in rivalry with Cardinals going back to 1926. The Cardinals were a charter member of the league in 1921 and have been owned by the Bidwill family since 1932.

* * *

GREEN BAY PACKERS. The celebrated Packers play the Giants, for the first time since 1949, with a host of sparkling new stars in the Polo Grounds Nov. 16. Vito (Babe) Parilli, Bill Reichart, Bobby Dillon and Bill Howton are top rookies. Tobin Rote in 1951 recorded a league-leading 6.9-yard average on 76 rushes. Gene Ronzani, coach, also directs Tony Canadeo, Fred Cone and Billy Grimes, and Bob Mann, end who caught 50 passes, fourth best in 1951. Giants and civic-supported Packers, in league's closest rivalry, have won 13, lost 13, tied two in series opened in 1928.

...to Browns in December

SAN FRANCISCO FORTY-NINERS. For the first time, the Giants meet one of football's most colorful teams, in the Polo Grounds Nov. 9. The Forty-Niners will introduce the fabulous power back of the Pacific Coast Conference, Hugh McElhenny. Bob Toneff is another rookie star. The resourceful Frankie Albert, backed by Y. A. Tittle, pass for Buck Shaw, coach. Joe Perry was No. 5 in rushing, and Gordy Soltan was No. 2 pass receiver and No. 5 scorer in '51. The fancy Forty-Niners, owned by Tony and Vic Morabito, joined the NFL in 1950, after the All-America Conference disbanded.

* * *

WASHINGTON REDSKINS. The Giants and the Redskins, traditional eastern rivals, will meet in Griffith Stadium Nov. 23, and in the Polo Grounds Dec. 7. For a period of 10 years, ending in 1946, these clubs monopolized their conference championship, each winning five times. Giants won 19, lost 11, tied one in series opened in 1937. The world's greatest forward passer, Sammy Baugh, again leads the Redskins. He is supported by Harry Gilmer and rookie Eddie LeBaron. Handy Andy Davis and Dick Hightower join LeBaron among the new stars. Mule Train Heath, Choo Choo Justice and the league's No. 2 rusher, Bob Goode, are coach Dick Todd's runners. George Preston Marshall founded the Redskins in Boston in 1933 and transferred the franchise to Washington in 1937.

* * *

PITTSBURGH STEELERS. Mighty Mo Madzlewski is the brightest new star of the team Arthur J. Rooney established in 1932. George Tarasovic and Gary Kerkorian are other top drawer rookies. Chuck Ortman, Jerry Nuzum, Joe Geri and Lynn Chandnois are holdover stars. Joe Bach, new coach, switches from single-wing to T this year. Giants play the Steelers in Forbes Field Nov. 30 with a record of 20 won, 11 lost and two tied in series dating to 1933.

* * *

CLEVELAND BROWNS. Since the champion Browns of the All-America Conference came into the National League in 1950, their keenest rivals have been the Giants. In five games, of which the Browns won three, each side scored a shutout, and the Browns registered 46 points to 39 for New York. In Municipal Stadium, Cleveland on Oct. 12, and in the Polo Grounds finale Dec. 14, the Giants will face Otto Graham, George Ratterman, Dub "Six-Touchdown" Jones, Mac Speedie and Dante Lavelli, and the star rookie of Paul Brown's stylish squad, Bert Rechichar, captain of Tennessee. If history repeats, the game in the Polo Grounds December 14 is likely to crown the conference winner. Giants and Browns are always that close.

Stars Shining Brightest

Who are the great stars of the Giants, the all-time heroes? Steve Owen, who missed only the first of the club's 28 years, is best fitted to say. The coach selects 23 men, excluding present Giants. It's not an offensive team — not a defensive platoon — but both! Every player is a 60-minute man. As Owen comments: "Any 11 of them could play a game — without help." Here they are, from all quarters of the nation:

QUARTERBACKS: Ed Danowski, Fordham. Bennie Friedman, Michigan. Cecil Griggs, Sherman (Tex.) College. Jack Haggerty, Georgetown.

HALFBACKS: Tuffy Leemans, George Washington. Kink Richards, Simpson (Ia.) College. Ward Cuff, Marquette. Hinky Haines, Penn State.

FULLBACKS: Ken Strong, N.Y.U. Jack McBride, Syracuse. Phil White, Oklahoma.

ENDS: Jim Poole, Mississippi. Ray Flaherty, Gonzaga. Morris Badgro, U. S. C.

TACKLES: Al Blozis, Georgetown. Ed Widseth, Minnesota. Cal Hubbard, Centenary.

GUARDS: Len Younce, Oregon State. John Dell Isola, Fordham. Butch Gibson, Grove City (Pa.) College.

CENTERS: Mel Hein, Washington State. George Murtagh, Georgetown. Joe Alexander, Syracuse.

The squad is scaled to the T, current Giant basic formation, and Owen therefore places at quarterback four men who played as single wing left halfbacks. All four would be at quarter today, he believes, because of their unerring passing and shrewd signal-calling.

From his A-formation single wing, the coach selects two "quarterbacks" who were his finest blocking backs, Nello Falaschi of Santa Clara and Leland Shafer of Kansas State. He names two more for special distinction, Dale Burnett of Emporia (Kans.) State Teachers, as most effective pass receiver, and Kay Eakin of Arkansas, as most brilliant punter. Other "bests", from the all-time squad, are Hein as a tackler,

Tuffy Leemans

Cuff at field goals, Strong at kickoffs, Danowski at passing.

Of all the stars shining brightest in Giant memory, Owen perhaps has highest regard for Hein. "He played longer (15 years) than any Giant, and was coached less," Owen summed up. "Coaching him was like telling Babe Ruth how to hit."

Giants on TV, Radio

Fans in the northeast part of the country, which includes 28 per cent of the population of the nation, will be able to follow the team on television and radio this season over the expanded Giants Football Network.

The television commentary will be made by Harry Wismer, the celebrated announcer who has been associated with major league football for many years, and who has been among its strongest advocates.

Marty Glickman, perennial favorite of Giant fans, and one of the premier play-by-play announcers of football, will continue to broadcast the radio story. Marty will be assisted by Chris Schenkel, a bright new star from New England.

The network of TV and radio will have more than 40 outlets, none duplicating another, which will blanket the six states of New England, New York, New Jersey and much of Pennsylvania.

Marty Glickman

The TV coverage will be as follows. In the New York City area, fans will receive pictures of the games which the Giants play away from home. Outside the metropolitan area, fans will see the entire schedule of home and away games, through stations in Boston, Providence, Schenectady, Syracuse, Utica and Binghamton.

The radio coverage will include New York City as well as the network for all 12 championship games, through a hookup of stations in Elmira, Hornell, Ogdensburg, Olean, Oneonta, Poughkeepsie and Watertown in New York, Scranton and Stroudsburg in Pennsylvania, Greenfield, Pittsfield and Springfield in Massachusetts, New Haven, Conn., and points in Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire.

As a special added attraction on the air waves, New York metropolitan area fans again will see Giant Quarterback Huddle, the mid-week half-hour TV show featuring Steve Owen, coach, who will divulge the inside of football through his own inimitable stories, action films and player demonstrations.

If you can't be there in the Polo Grounds, you'll find the Giants on the air.

Sweat, Toil and Tears Too

Here, just before turning to the players, is the ideal spot to introduce the threesome which moulds those men into a team under direction of Steve Owen. These assistant coaches are Al Sherman, backs, Ed Kolman, line, and Jim Lee Howell, ends.

These are the aides, who, after the grand strategy for the season or the game is devised, get down to earth with the personnel to make it work. Their lot is the sweat and the toil — and the tears, too, when the goal is not attained.

All three command the respect which athletes accord only to those who have also played the game. Sherman, former lefthanded passer and field general of the Philadelphia Eagles, was lauded and recommended by Greasy Neal for his thorough grasp of the tactics of the T. Kolman for six years was one of the mighty Chicago Bears, and ranks among the great tackles of that team. Howell was a premier end with the Giants for eight years.

Sherman, 30, helped the Giants install the T for '49. He had already coached at St. Joseph's Prep in Philadelphia, at Gettysburg (Pa.) College, and had won the American Football League championship with the Paterson (N.J.) Panthers, who put up an 11-1 record.

Kolman, a native of Greenpoint, Brooklyn, was all-met at Boys High, and All-American at Temple U. Ed missed the '48 season because of injury. He tried a comeback with the Giants in '49, and his tutoring influence on the young Giant line turned him to coaching.

Howell, former state senator from Arkansas, last played in '48, and joined Owen's staff the following year. The 8-1 record, best in its history, which Wagner College of Staten Island reached under his direction in '49 was a minor miracle in New York football.

These three coaches have achieved a perfect understanding and teamwork in translating Giant theory into action.

QUARTERBACKS

Southern Methodist 22 195 6'3"

Texans call Benners the greatest "arm" since Sammy Baugh. His career is highlighted with sensational performances. He was the big show on national television last season while defeating Notre Dame 27-20, with 22 completions out of 42 for 336 yards and four touchdowns. Ohio State saw him complete 19 for 306 and four touchdowns in '50, and 21 of 29 in '51. In the Blue-Gray game at Montgomery, Benners hit 14 of 21 for 272 yards and two touchdowns. Herman Morgan, coach of Highland Park H. S. in Dallas, discovered Fred. The coach saw the boy throwing a football and invited him to practice. Fred was a T center one year in high school. He had a brief trial at Suwanee before transferring to SMU. There he again met Morgan, as freshman coach, and launched his career. Ticketed for T quarterback as well as Southwest spreads under Owen. Giant foresight, in drafting Benners No. 8, 1951, brought one of the greatest collegiate passers to New York. Home town Dallas. Law student. Single.

CHARLEY CONERLEY

Mississippi 28 185 6'1"

Chuckin' Charley, who completed more passes in a game, 36, than any other in NFL history, is ready for a comeback after a gritty but sub-par performance because of a shoulder separation last season. Conerley often played although in pain, but his long throwing lacked effectiveness. This season he is back to normal — which means terrific. He completed 93 of 189 for 1277 yards, 49.2 per cent and 10 touchdowns. Chuck rewrote the nation's collegiate passing records as a senior in '47 at Ole Miss, and now has surpassed the marks of his illustrious predecessors on the Giants. All-America at Mississippi and NFL Rookie-of-the-Year in '48. Conerley came up as single wing tailback, and learned T quarterbacking chores for '49. He now directs the T and the A with equal facility. Marines corporal. Obtained in trade with Redskins, 1948. Cotton farmer in home town, Clarksdale, Miss. Birthday Sept. 19. Married.

THOMAS LANDRY Texas 27 195 6'

One of the famous original umbrella defense quartet, Landry has recovered from a knee injury which prevented him from punting last season, but kept him out of only two games, so great was his urge to play, despite pain. He intercepted eight passes for 121 yards, and two touchdowns on stolen passes tied him with Schnellbacher for league lead. His longest run was 55 yards. Classic tackler. KYLE ROTE Southern Methodist 24 195 6'

The "Mighty Mustang", one of the most famous and most publicized college players of all time, struck hard luck as a rookie last season. After a brilliant inaugural, Kyle suffered a knee injury, and appeared in only five games. Diagnosis disclosed a damaged cartilage and the star was withheld from action by Owen for fear of aggravating the damage. An operation last May corrected the trouble. In his brief career as a Giant, Kyle rushed 21 times for 114 yards, a 5.4 average, and caught eight passes for 62 yards. Owen believes Rote will become one of the all-time big league stars. Kyle was MVP at Thomas Jefferson High in San Antonio in '46, and was showered with honors ever since. His most celebrated stand was against Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl in '49, when his spirited drive for three touchdowns forced the Irish to the limit to close their four-year march without a defeat. Unanimous All-America choice, Sportsman-ship Trophy winner of Southwest Conference, voted to have achieved outstanding athletic performance by a Texan in this century. Played minor league baseball. Has given leading golf pros tough tussle. Rote was desired by all clubs of the NFL for 1951: the Giants were lucky to draw him on the bonus pick. Home town San Antonio. Birthday Mar. 17. Married.

EMLÉN TUNNELL Iowa 27 183 6'1"

The spectacular safety man of the Giants returned a kickoff for 100 yards and a touchdown against the Yanks last Nov. 4. He is a touchdown threat any time he receives the ball, with his tricky, nifty, broken-field running and his fantastic faking to elude the first flood of tacklers. Set a new league record in handling 34 punt returns. His total of 489 yards, for a 14.4 average, topped the league. He scored three touchdowns, the longest 81 yards. Also nabbed nine passes for 74 yards.

Made Associated Press All-Pro, and the Pro Bowl. Served in Coast Guard. Em was one of the big finds in football history — he walked into the Giant office and asked for a job! Home town Garret Hill, Pa. Miller High Life salesman. Birthday, Mar. 29. Single.

STAN WOJCIK Marquette 25 185 6'

This speedster gained 442 yards for a 3.6 average and five touchdowns, and threw 24 passes for 185 yards and two touchdowns last season. Attended Tulane before Marquette. Corporal in Army. Signed as free agent, 1952. Home town Chicago. Birthday Sept. 28. Married.

FULLBACKS

SABIN HENDRICKSON McMurry 23 200 6'

An all-around power back who was named to the All-Texas defensive team, and also gained 949 yards rushing from scrimmage! There is always room for a rugged fullback, and that makes Sabin a prime prospect. Signed as free agent, 1952. Home town Littlefield, Tex. Birthday July 3.

ROBERT JACKSON N. Carolina A. & T. 27 210 5'11"

Fast and dynamic blocker who may become Owen's switch man to permit changes from play to play from the A to the T. Nicknamed "Stonewall." Sergeant in Army. Drafted No. 16, 1950 from small Negro college in North Carolina. Home town Allentown, Pa. Birthday Oct. 26. Married.

PATRICK KNIGHT Southern Methodist 23 200 6'2"

Texans say this chap "just loves to play". He is a devastating blocker, and is scheduled for the clear-out role in Owen's A backfield. Also a crack defensive back and end. Drafted No. 10, 1952. Home town San Antonio, Tex. Birthday May 14. Married.

EDDIE PRICE Tulane 26 190 5'11"

This former All-American from Tulane gave one of the most spirited and indomitable performances in the club's history last fall. Although he was a marked man on attack after Rote was hurt, Eddie won the league championship as an Iron Man at rushing. He also set an all-time record of 271 rushing attempts. His league leading total of 971 yards would have bettered 1,000, had not a 70-yard run been called back because of an off-side. He scored seven touchdowns and was invaluable to his team. Price, who so narrowly missed becoming the third 1,000 yarder in NFL annals, surpassed that figure twice at Tulane with 1,178 and 1,137 in '48-'49. As a Giant rookie in '50 he gained 703 yards, for a 5.6 average, and went as well in the A as in the T, although he was brought up in the latter system. One of the most adaptable and consistent ball carriers of recent history, and surely one of the most rugged. He made the Pro Bowl and the Associated Press All-Pro team — of course.

Action at the Polo Grounds

The historic Polo Grounds, scene of every Giant home game for 28 years, is one of the finest places to view football in the country. Because of the narrow rectangular construction of the plant, illustrated in the diagram, fans on both sidelines are much closer to the play than is possible in the conventional baseball park or football bowl. The stands, incidentally, seat 47,000 in upper and lower decks and 10,000 temporary field seats may be installed. Such added seats made possible the all-time Giant attendance record of 50,000 average for eight games in 1946.

POLO GROUNDS

Many great contests which will forever remain in football lore have been fought by the Giants in the venerable arena on the banks of the Harlem in upper Manhattan, but the sentimental one of all must be the last game in which the fabulous Knute Rockne directed his celebrated Four Horsemen of Notre Dame. This was a special match between the Giants and the Rockne All-Stars which raised $115,000 for the unemployed of New York in the depression. Three months later the beloved coach lost his life in a plane crash in a Kansas corn field.

Doubtless the most dramatic of all Giant feats in the Polo Grounds was the storied "sneaker" game on an icy field in 1934, against the Chicago Bears for the championship of the world. The mighty Bears had won 34 straight, and were huge favorites. They took a halftime lead of 13-3, and the Giants seemed to have little chance.

However, Steve Owen outfoxed George Halas, Chicago coach, during the intermission. He sent messengers to nearby Manhattan College to get sneaker shoes, which he believed would grip the frozen turf better than cleats. When the teams came down the clubhouse stairs for the second half, several Bears noted the Giant footgear. "Step on their toes," said Halas. This was no remedy as the sure-footed Giants sped to a 30-13 win, for one of the great upsets in the history of the league.

Fans of three states in the metropolitan area, New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, find it easy to reach the Polo Grounds. Express subways stop virtually at the gate. An unexcelled parking lot adjoining the field accommodates 1,500 cars. Fine new highways from all sectors lead directly to the park, to encourage private auto, and chartered bus travel to games.

Easy to reach, and the best place to see the show — that's the Polo Grounds, scene of the Giant football drama for 28 years.
